How about getting that photo on a T-shirt?

Sometimes you see a photograph that moves you. Maybe a loved one is in the photo.

Or maybe the photo contains a subject that is particularly important to you, such as an animal or landscape.

Each week, your Lake County Journal includes an array of photos.

Many of these images can be purchased through an online store.

Just visit www.LakeCountyJournals.com. Place your cursor over the "Info" button and then click on "Photo Store."

Kathy Gresey

Once you are at the photo store, you can peruse hundreds of pictures from our paper and our sister papers.

To view photos that have appeared in the Journals, click on the "Lake County Journals: Commu-

There you will see a list of images that we have printed in the paper.

In addition, pictures that have not been printed are available at the photo store and can be purchased through the site.

The big decision is what type of product you want your picture to appear on.

Do you want that shot of your smiling child on a T-shirt?

Or a mug?

Or a button?

Maybe you just want a traditional photo.

Then all you have to do is select a size and the quantity.

Can't find a picture that you want? Let us know.

Public works hosts mock emergency drill

By STEPHANIE N. LEHMAN
slehman@nwnewsgroup.com

WAUCONDA - The village of Wauconda made public works history last week by hosting the first mock emergency drill for public works departments in northern Illinois.

On Nov. 20, a public works mutual aid positioning drill, spearheaded by Wauconda's director of public works, Dave Geary, rallied departments across Lake County to the Wauconda Park District in an effort to coordinate the vehicles, equipment and manpower that might respond to a natural disaster.

If, for instance, a tornado hit Wauconda and the village's own resources were overtaxed, the village could call on neighboring public works departments to help clear roadways and remove debris - the same type of process fire and police departments use on regular emergency calls, Geary said.

The drill helped simulate the organization of approximately 40 pieces of equipment that responded to the call between 9 and 9:30 a.m. from the Lake County Public Works Department, the villages of Barrington, Island Lake, Lake Villa, Lake Zurich, Libertyville, Lindenhurst and Mundelein, and the Wauconda Township Highway Department.

"This exercise is all about - you called them; they're coming; now what do you do?" Geary said. "There's some realism here that you kind of have to learn on your feet. It takes a minute to get organized, but once we get the wheels moving, it's a pretty mean fighting machine."

"I think it's a great idea for the same reason the fire departments use it," said director of Lindenhurst public works department Wes Welsh. "Sooner or later there's going to be an issue where someone needs help. Everyone will be familiar with everyone else, and the business arrangements, if you will, for marshalling people will already be in place."

Eight separate task forces were put together, given a map book and assigned to report two different locations. The task forces completed their assignments within two hours - a feat more successful than Geary had anticipated.

"I think it went so well because public works employees, they're kind of can-do people," he said. "They see a problem and they jump in. They don't need a lot of instruction."

Wauconda is only the second community in Illinois to sign into a statewide public works pact, the Illinois Public Works Mutual Aid Network, which is a legal agreement that allows public works departments to call on other organizations to assist in emergencies.

Within the next six months, Geary hopes to send out the template for the drill so other communities are familiar with it, and have each of them sign into the IPWMAN.

"We're aware of that agreement and its forthcoming," Welsh said. "I can't speak for the Village Board, but from my personal opinion, public works mutual aid is a wonderful step."

Geary said another drill is scheduled for April. The villages of Mundelein and Barrington have already offered to host the command center for the drill.

Iditarod racer visits local school

Musher competed in 2007, 2008 Alaskan wilderness trek

By COLIN SELBO

cselbo@nwnewsgruop.com

ANTIOCH — Students at W.C. Petty Elementary School got a visit last week from an award-winning dog musher.

Deborah Bicknell competed in the 2007 and 2008 Iditarod, a race that spans more than 1,100 miles of the Alaskan wilderness and took her 14 days to complete.

The visit from Bicknell was an appropriate culmination for the students after they tracked Bicknell and other mushers on the Internet during the race last March, said third-grade teacher Ginny Jorden, who helped arrange for Bicknell's visit.

"It's what we call adventure learning," Jorden said. "We follow the event while it's actually occurring. That adds to the excitement."

Bicknell visited W.C. Petty, along with other elementary schools in District 34, after meeting Jorden at the 2007 Iditarod. Jorden had bid for the chance to ride the first leg of the race with Bicknell as an honorary rider.

The students later wrote letters to Bicknell, Jorden said, asking about the experience of the race.

"She wrote back to each and every student. The kids felt so special," Jorden said.

Students are able to track the progress of individual mushers during the race and Jorden said she and other participating teachers cater their lessons to relate to the Iditarod. Students look up various stops along the route on maps of the state, as well as complete creative writing assignments about what might have happened to their musher each day out on the trail, she said.

Pumpkin, a 9-year-old Alaskan Husky who has competed in the Iditarod with his owner, Deborah Bicknell, of Juneau, Alaska, visits with third-grader Kylie Ellis at W.C. Petty Elementary School in Antioch.

"They put themselves into the shoes of the musher," Jorden said. "They're taking what they're learning and incorporating it into their writing."

The chance to follow the event real-time gives the students incentive and excites them about the lessons, she said.

"They are so eager to come to school everyday during that time period and check their musher," Jorden said.

The 64-year-old Bicknell gave a presentation on the race to third- and fourth-graders at the school, some of whom had tracked her progress earlier in the year. The presentation included pictures of her and the dogs out and the trail and pictures of places the students had researched during the race.

Bicknell, who has been a musher for 53 years, also brought one of the dogs she used in the race, which students got the chance to see up close.

Although she did not complete the race in 2007, in 2008 she won the red lantern award, which is given to the final finisher of the Iditarod. Bicknell said the experience of finishing the race was exhilarating.

"I was quite excited because I never thought I was going to be there," she said.

Meeting Bicknell in person and hearing her talk about the race first-hand helped students learn the value of what Bicknell was able to accomplish, Jorden said.

"They learn that no matter where you place in the race, it's about perseverance and spirit," she said.

Bicknell was happy to show off her award to the students, even though it represented a last-place finish.

"There's only two places in the record books: first and last," she said.

Young moms receive support

By YADIRA SÁNCHEZ OLSON

Want to know more?

The next Teen Mom Program meeting is Dec. 8. For more information call 847-662-4247

Having a baby could be the most beautiful time in a woman's life. If she's having the baby under the right circumstances, that is. If not, this could be a time of stress, confusion and loneliness.

This is especially true for those soon-to-be mothers that are still in their teens.

A program that is changing the lives of those mothers, fathers and babies, is the YWCA Lake County Teen Mom Program.

The program is designed to aid teen moms in every aspect of their motherhood. It also helps the people who are in the teen mom's life, including her parents and significant other.

Teens age 13 to 20 are welcome to join the program and don't need parental permission to be admitted.

"Our No. 1 goal is to keep them in school," said Jontelle Flowers, parent educator at the YWCA Lake County. Flowers leads the group meetings and is in charge of the program.

"Our teens are the ones that get lost in the cracks," Flowers said. "Just because a teen gets pregnant, it doesn't make it the end of the world."

The end of the world is what 18-year-old Jenny Guthrie of Lindenhurst thought was happening when she got pregnant at the age of 17.

"I was freaking out when I found out," Guthrie said. "Then a friend told me about the Teen Mom Program."

Every Tuesday, Guthrie went to the Teen Mom classes that Flowers taught at her school, Grayslake North High School.

"I always got real helpful information," Guthrie said.

Guthrie gave birth to twin girls on June 4 of this year. Babies Rihanna and Julianne Shanahan were born just less than a month after she graduated from high school.

"I probably would have [graduated] because I knew I had to so that I could get a good job. But it helped that they were there for me," Guthrie said. "I wouldn't know half the stuff that I know now if it weren't for them."

Some of the knowledge that Guthrie acquired in the program also helped Anna Hernandez of Lake Villa. Hernandez became pregnant at the age of 18 and was almost due when she contacted the YWCA about the Teen Mom Program.

"It was really supportive," Hernandez said of the program. "They gave me notes and packets of information on different topics."

Some of those topics include financial planning, parenting, housing, and stress management.

"My goal is to make sure [program participants] don't give up," Flowers said.

Sequoits lose in semis

Playoff loss brings historic season to a close

By COLIN SELBO
cselbo@nwnewsjournal.com

ANTIOCH – The Antioch Sequoits historic run through the playoffs has finally come to an end.

Making their first appearance in the state semifinals since 1982, the Sequoits fell to Lemont High School 38-14 in a game that saw four Antioch turnovers.

Those turnovers gave Lemont ample scoring opportunities and left the Sequoits one game short of a trip to the Class 6A state championship in Champaign. After committing four turnovers in the previous week's quarterfinal game, head coach Brian Glashagel said the sloppy play finally caught up with the Sequoits.

"We knew we were going to have to take care of the ball against this team," Glashagel said. "When you're in the semifinals, every time you turn the ball over, it's so magnified."

Antioch (12-1) scored on a 63-yard run from sophomore running back Vinnie Holm in the second quarter, to tie the game, 7-7. But that was as close as the Sequoits could get to Lemont (13-0). Senior quarterback Matt Romani scored on a one-yard run in third quarter for Antioch's final score.

Despite the loss, Glashagel praised his team for a season he described as "remarkable." Considering the Sequoits finished last season with a record of 3-6, and 0-9 two years ago, a 12-1 campaign may have seemed improbable back in August.

But Glashagel said his team was talking about making the playoffs, and even the state championship, throughout the off-season.

"You got to credit these seniors. They were on a mission since the last game of the year last season," he said. "They wouldn't accept anything like we had last season."

Although that senior class will not be back next year, Glashagel pointed to Holm and junior running back Steve Lorenzini as just two reasons Antioch will be a top team in the North Suburban Conference again next season.

With all the team accomplished this year, Glashagel said the Sequoits had no reason to hang their heads.

"It will start to sink in about what we did and how great it was," he said. "We only lost one game; celebrate a remarkable, remarkable thing."

Village plans holiday parade

Annual event to include tree lighting ceremony, football team

By ANDRE TRIPLETT
antioch@lakecountyjournal.com

ANTIOCH – The village of Antioch kicks off the holiday season Friday, Nov. 28, with its annual Christmas Parade and Tree Lighting Ceremony.

The festivities start at 6:30 p.m. with the Christmas Parade. The Antioch chapter of the VFW will lead the parade's participating community vendors, fire department and pageant queens through its downtown route.

The parade will set out on Park Avenue and travel north to Main Street. It then will turn left onto Orchard Street, go south down Toft Street, left onto Lake Street and return to Park Avenue.

The parade will end in front of Village Hall at 7 p.m. where participants and viewers can sing Christmas Carols, eat homemade cookies, drink hot chocolate and watch the Tree Lighting Ceremony.

The Antioch Family Christmas Tree will be decorated with handmade ornaments that have been donated by local families.

"This is our annual Holiday Parade; it's been going on for years," said Shawn Roby, special events coordinator for the Antioch's Parks and Recreation Department. "It's a nice tradition to be continuing."

Following the tree lighting, children will have the chance to give their Christmas wishes to Santa Clause at Santa's Enchanted Castle, located on Toft Street.

The parade also will include a place for Antioch High School's football team, the Sequoits, which lost last week in the semifinals of the state semifinals.

With the loss, the Sequoits will be invited to serve as the general grand marshals of the parade.

The Sequoits will follow the VFW, the traditional leaders of the parade.

CLC names 4 finalists in search for president

Decision expected in January

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

GRAYSLAKE - The College of Lake County's presidential search has been narrowed to four finalists who will be interviewed by the board of trustees in December.

The four finalists are Dr. Raymond Cumiskey, president of Southeastern Illinois College in Harrisburg; James Rock, interim president of the College of Lake County; Dr. Vicky Smith, president of Neosho County Community College in Chanute, Kan.; and Dr. Girard Weber, president of Kankakee Community College in Kankakee.

The trustees approved the list of finalists, accepting the recommendations of the college's presidential search committee this month.

Since August, the committee, composed of college faculty and staff and representatives from the broader Lake County community, has been reviewing applications and conducting both telephone and in-person interviews.

The four finalists emerged from a candidate pool of 42 applicants.

"We advertised the position as open until filled, and we felt that it was important to have the broadest pool possible," said Susan Yasecko, executive director of human resources, in a release.

In November and early December, members of the search committee will visit the home campuses of each finalist to learn more about the candidates' leadership styles and accomplishments, she said.

The finalists will come to the college in December for interviews with the board of trustees. While on campus, they also will participate in public forums, providing an opportunity for the college community and members of the public to meet them and ask questions.

Those attending the public forums will have the opportunity to provide feedback for consideration by the board in their decision-making process, Yasecko said.

The dates and times of the forums, as well as biographical information on the candidates, will be listed on the college's Web site at www.clcillinois.edu.

The trustees are expected to appoint a new president at the January 2009 board meeting, Yasecko said.

Northern Ice showcases softball talent for college

WAUCONDA - The Northern Ice U16 College Exposure Team has just completed a successful fall season.

The Northern Ice is based in Wauconda and fields young ladies from Lake and McHenry counties, including students Paige Goldberg, of Lake Zurich High School; Kendra Wedl, of Wauconda; Kayla Stos, of Wauconda; Jordan Wekony, of Barrington; Toni Kintzel, of Libertyville; Shelby Luna, of Warren; Abby Hanson, of Zion-Benton; Danielle Kaczmar, of Libertyville; Brenda Botzenhart, of McHenry East; Victoria Pyan, of Crystal Lake South; Kristen Kuhn, of Barrington; Kelsey Kuhn, of Barrington; Heather Kozlowski, of Jacobs; Veronica Kraly, of Zion-

Benton; and Hannah Mahoney, of Crystal Lake South.

The fall season started out a little rocky, after the team lost some outstanding summer players to the U18 team, but with hard work the girls came up with some big wins.

In September, the Ice came in third place behind two U18 teams in their own Fall Freeze Out Tournament, but remained undefeated against U16 teams.

October tournaments included both the Homer Hawks College Exposure

Tournament (1-4 all losses against U18 teams) and the Sparks Pumpkin Tournament (3-1-1) in Elgin.

In November, the team traveled to St. Louis for the St. Louis Classic College Exposure Tournament (5-0) and took first place in the Turkey Shoot in McCook (4-0).

Not only did the girls showcase their talents to hundreds of college coaches, but their successes on the field have been rewarded by several invitations to prestigious tournaments around the country and even an invite to an international tournament, the Canada Cup 16 and Under Fastpitch Showcase Tournament happening in 2009 in Surrey British Columbia, Canada.

Rick Eklund, Steve Kaczmar and Dan Botzenhart coach the Ice.

Executive director set

The Lake County Community Foundation, an affiliate of the Chicago Community Trust, has appointed Sylvia M. Zaldivar-Sykes as the foundation's executive director.

The five-year old foundation was established to meet the charitable needs of the fast-growing communities of Lake County.

Zaldivar-Sykes replaces executive director, Betsy Dietel, who led the foundation for three years.

"The board of directors will miss Betsy who set a high bar for future executive directors," said Katy Laning, chairman of the Lake County Community Foundation, in a release. "Sylvia brings a wealth of experience and knowledge to our organization. She understands the needs of the communities, has established relationships with the donor community and the nonprofit sector in addition to being a passionate advocate for the work of the Lake County Community Foundation."

Voters end county GOP monopoly

Next week, the newly elected members of the Lake County Board will be sworn in, and the board will meet to organize. If there was one surprise in the election, it was the election of four new Democrats to the board in districts that were always Republican. That puts the Republican majority at 13-10.

Although Larry Leafblad, the Republican representing District 6, maintained that the Obama coattails played a large role in his defeat, I believe that other factors helped Democrats achieve victories. For example, Linda Bush, Larry's opponent, had name recognition and experience, and being a qualified candidate may have given her an extra edge. Both Diane Hewett, who won over Randy Whitmore in District 2, and Terry Wilke, who bested Bob Powers in District 4, ran close elections the last time, so they had built-in name recognition. Pat Carey, who won in the 11th over Terese Douglass, had enormous name recognition and a "smart-growth" reputation from her long service as mayor and trustee of Grayslake.

Lake County Democrats have gone from fielding and winning excellent candidates for state legislative offices to doing the same in countywide and county board races.

Gone are the days in Lake County when up and down the ticket there were no Democrats. In addition to seeking qualified candidates, the Democrats relied on a combination of door-to-door campaigning, a sophisticated computerized organization,

John S.
Matijevich

and strong financing of their local slate.

The election may be a wake-up call for local Republicans. They will probably be much more prepared in 2010. Just being on the ballot doesn't cut it anymore.

As the former Speaker "Tip" O'Neill used to say, "all politics is local." Candidates can't ignore the issues and concerns of people in their districts.

Lately, I have been reading that some county board members are concerned that the narrow political margin may bring partisan politics to the board. Not to worry. It wasn't too many years ago when there were just a few Democrats on the board, yet the leadership was really partisan and ran the county's business with almost absolute dictatorial powers. If members didn't toe the line, their voices were muzzled. A balance of political power usually brings more openness and accountability.

After many decades of one-party rule, real two-party politics has finally arrived in Lake County. That ought to freshen and enliven the political atmosphere.

Bonding for a Perfect Smile

Are you self-conscious about your smile? Do you have a chipped tooth that needs repair? Are your front teeth stained from the use of certain antibiotics? If any of these problems are hindering your smile, a dental technique called bonding can make these problems a thing of the past.

Bonding, a word which has become synonymous with cosmetic dentistry, is a general term that describes a variety of techniques involving attaching or bonding a plastic or porcelain material to the tooth surface. One method involves using a composite resin, resembling a putty, to rebuild or reshape the tooth, once the desired look is achieved, the resin is exposed to a blue bonding light that dries and hardens it. The tooth is then smoothed and polished.

Another form of bonding involves the use of porcelain veneers that lock and are applied like fake fingernails. Most bonding procedures take only one or two visits and are completely painless.

Saying goodbye

To the Editor:
Just a note about my favorite columnist, Pat Weiss. I am now 36 and live in Tucson (Ariz.). I grew up in Wauconda back in the '80s and have been written about in Weiss' column since then.

Recently, she would call me at 5 in the morning to get the latest dish because she never remembered the time change.

I always took great joy reading her column and have enjoyed it the past few years online.

She was a great writer, director, actor, family woman, and a dear, dear friend.

Mrs. Weiss, I will miss you dearly. I sure hope heaven is ready for your column and productions. Love always to my favorite writer.

An open letter to my child

To my 5 year old:

For your birthday, I drove you and your treats to school. As I helped you take off your backpack, a classmate of yours said, "Hi, Summer."

"Why don't you say, 'Hi'?" I asked.

"I can't," you said. "I'm operating my coat."

When you were done "operating," you said, "Hello."

I think of scenes like this whenever I think of the little girl you so quickly have become. You rarely say or do things casually. Like that same day when I let you have a piece of my gum.

You chewed it for a couple seconds, handed it to me and said, "Well, I'm so very sorry, but I don't like this gum."

If you're hurt, you're inconsolably hurt. Sally Field has nothing on you when it comes to drama.

If you're happy, it's the kind of happy that rubs off on everyone around you.

I picked you up from school and took you to lunch. (We went to IHOP, by the way. You first called it "I-Pass," then asked if we could go to "I JUMP" again some day.)

Just you and me. This doesn't happen very often.

You're usually sharing me with your four sisters, making yourself heard over the cries, screams and laughs that fill our home. You've gotten quite good at this, by the way.

I look at you every day. I listen. But I admit I don't always see and hear you as I'm rushing around. For that, I'm sorry.

On this day, though, I watched as you carefully tore your pancakes apart with your fingers, then ate the pieces with your fork.

I watched as you listened to the waitress who pointed out an old couple settling in nearby.

The man carefully pulled out the chair for the woman, took off her coat, helped her sit down, eased the chair back into the table. He gently placed the coat on her shoulders.

"That's love," the waitress whispered to us. As much as the scene stuck with me, it stuck with you, too.

You asked about it days later. Because that's what you do. You rarely forget anything. Why do they love each other? Do they have kids? Why is that love?

Yes, you're a 5-year-old who still eats with her fingers sometimes, but at times, I think someone older lurks within.

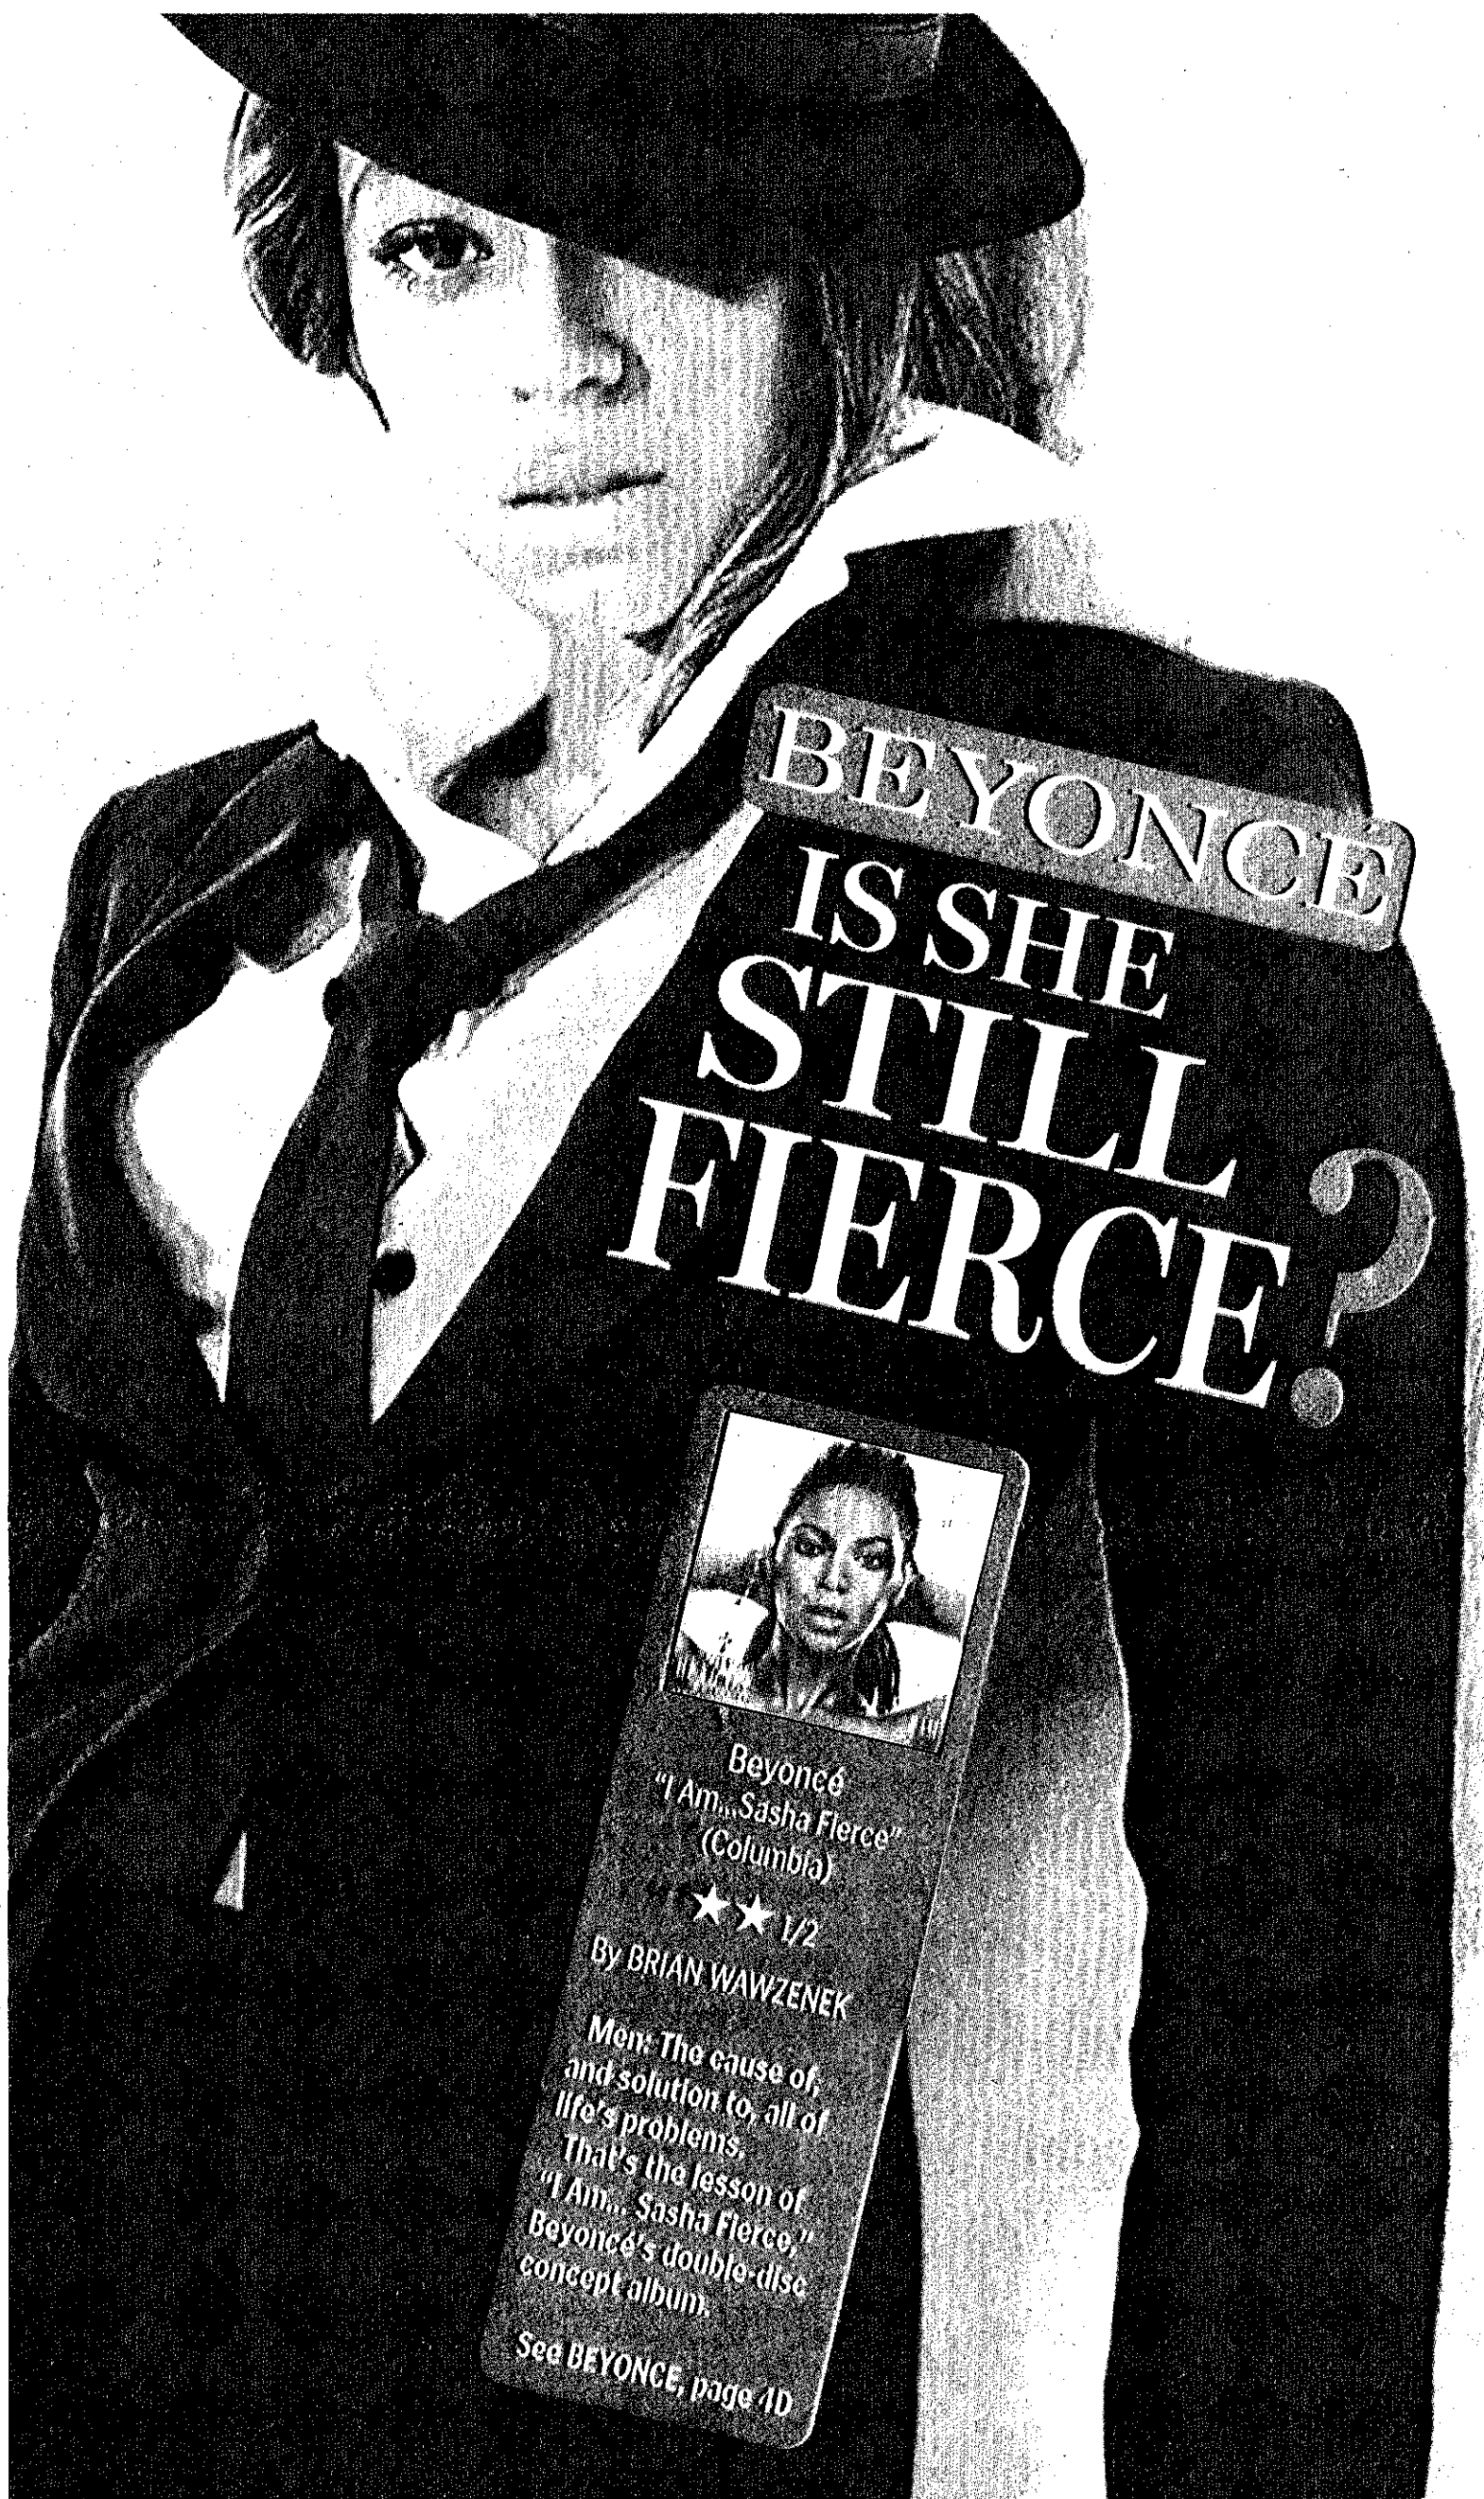

You're so full of life, love, compassion, so easily excited over the simplest of gifts.

You're just as happy drawing a picture on a sheet of paper towel as you are on a fancy Magna Doodle.

You're a nurturer, perhaps because you're the oldest of five. But I think you were born that way.

When your baby sisters cry, you make them laugh. When I struggle with your younger sisters at bedtime, you try to help.

A quirky relationship

By TOM WITOM
gurnee@lakecountyjournals.com

"Grey Gardens," making its Chicago premiere at Northlight Theatre, provides a fascinating encounter with a highly eccentric family.

This unlikely musical, based on a documentary film of the same name, draws on real-world headlines involving Edith Bouvier Beale and her daughter "Little Edie," relatives of Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy. It's based on a play by Doug Wright, lyrics by Michael Korie and music by Scott Frankel. BJ Jones directs, backed by Doug Peck as musical director.

The entire play takes place in the 28-room Beale mansion, first in 1941 when the dwelling and its occupants were more or less in their prime and then in 1973 when the mother and daughter were discovered living in squalor as recluses in the dilapidated house with dozens of feral cats; eviction was imminent.

Act I sets the stage for the stark turn the principal characters' lives ultimately will take.

Tempe Thomas, as an insecure Little Edie, is about to meet her fiancé's family at an engagement party at Grey Gardens, as her family estate in East Hampton's is known. But there's friction between her mother, Edith (Hollis Resnik, who later takes on the role Edie, the daughter) who has a habit of trying to steal the limelight.

Joseph Kennedy Jr., an aspiring White House occupant played by Patrick Sarb, has second thoughts about his engagement and young Edie, blaming her mother for sabotaging the union, slips out of the house to New York to discover what life has in store for her.

Decades later in Act II Grey Gardens is a ruins. Edie, a spinster in her mid-50s who has not made her mark, is back home caring for her aged mother (Ann Whitney, assuming the role), who is as controlling as ever. The two women, though now financially depressed and emotionally overwrought, seem oblivious to how far they have slipped.

Rounding out the cast are Dennis Kelly in the dual roles of Edith's father and as preacher Norman Vincent Peale; Sean Blake, as the family butler/gardener and his son; Sarb as both Joe and a handyman; George Keating as Edith's gay live-in friend; Grace Etzkorn as 12-year-old Jackie Kennedy; and Arielle Dayan, as a young Lee Radziwell.

"Grey Gardens" offers a riveting but unsettling theatrical experience. Resnik's "Another Winter in a Summer Town" is especially affecting.

Beyoncé a singer with 2 personalities

• BEYONCE

The 27-year-old superstar vacillates wildly between laying praise at her man's feet and kicking dirt in his face.

She taunts a guy for not putting a ring on her finger on the snap-whump club banger "Single Ladies," then she's laying a ring on him, fitting him for sainthood on the elegantly epic "Halo."

Within this love/hate theme, Beyoncé unveils two facets of her personality and each gets its own CD. Disc one is plain-old B, crooning sweet pop-R&B and belting piano ballads. Disc two is Sasha Fierce, her stage-bound alter-ego, a creature of pure sass who yap-raps hip-hop soul and dance singles.

In short, two facets of Beyoncé's musical style that have previously coexisted are now isolated. Disc one is evening gown. Disc two is "Freakum Dress." Disc one is "Dream-girls." Disc two is "The Pink Panther."

It's cool that one of music's brightest luminaries has attempted something beyond just another pop album. But, with expectations bumped up, it's disappointing to discover that this is a hollow casing for just another pop album.

Actually, it's worse. In separating her two "selves," Beyoncé has screwed up the natural flow of a record. It's tough to slog through all the slow-mo fluff of the first disc without hankering for some old-fashioned Beyoncé spunk.

Then, by the time you get to Sasha's "Video Phone," you're ready to hang up.

Daughter says things that Mom needs to hear

You tell them to go back to bed.

You say things like, "Don't get frustrated, Mommy."

"It's OK."

Honestly, you say things I need to hear.

I asked you, now that you're 5, what you want to be when you grow up. You responded with, "What do you want to be?"

"Well, I'm your mom,"

I said.

"You're always going to be my mom?"

"Uh, yeah," I said.

"Well then, I'm always going to be your kid," you said.

Yes, you are, no matter how grown up you already have become.

And as proud as I am to have you as a daughter, I'm even luckier to be able to see life through your eyes.

Because just like that couple you keep asking me about, you show me what love is every single day.

Love,
Mom

Clip-and-Go Party-Planning Checklist

(MS) — If you need some assistance with organizing your event, refer to this cheat sheet. Listed are all the items you need to host a casual, buffet-style party at home for approximately 12 to 15 people.

- SHOPPING LIST
PARTY-SUPPLY STORE OR DEPARTMENT STORE
- 1 or more tablecloths (either disposable plastic or fabric) depending upon number of tables you have
 - chafing dishes to keep food warm while serving
 - aluminum serving pans
 - stemos (two per chafing dish)
 - serving spoons (one for each chafing dish)
 - basket to place rolls or bread
 - plastic flatware, plastic cups
 - napkins, paper plates, cake plates
 - balloons
 - crepe-paper streamers, if desired, or other party décor
 - coffee urn
- SUPERMARKET
- ice
 - beverages: soda, iced tea, seltzer, bottled water, beer
 - coffee (decaf and regular)
 - sugar/sugar substitute
 - tea
 - milk or cream
 - butter
 - eggs
 - 2 boxes ziti
 - 3 jars prepared tomato sauce or ingredients for homemade
 - 1 32-ounce container ricotta cheese
 - 1 16-ounce package mozzarella cheese
 - 12 boneless, skinless chicken breasts sliced thinly
 - 3 fresh lemons, or bottle lemon juice
 - flour
 - 2 cans of chicken broth
 - 2 family-size packages of frozen vegetables, your choice
 - 2 boxes instant white or brown rice
 - alcoholic beverages if you're serving mixed drinks
 - chips and dips
 - cake or other desserts (ask guests to bring desserts)
 - bread or rolls

- BUFFET RECIPES
Recipes for foods that feed (and fill up) a crowd:
- Easy Ziti
- 2 boxes ziti
 - 3 jars prepared tomato sauce or homemade
 - 1 32-ounce container ricotta cheese
 - 1 16-ounce package mozzarella cheese
- Salt, pepper, garlic powder, basil, oregano to taste

1. Boil water in a large pot; season with a dash of salt, or to taste. Add ziti to pot and lower heat to simmer 10-12 minutes, or until pasta is al dente. Drain and reserve.
2. Heat tomato sauce in a saucepan until hot. Season with dried or fresh herbs, to taste.
3. Shred or grate package of mozzarella cheese.
4. Assemble ziti in layers: Put a ladle of tomato sauce into pan to cover bottom of pan. Spoon enough ziti to form a layer. Top with some mozzarella cheese and 1/4 of the ricotta. Top with sauce. Repeat layering until all of the ziti and cheeses are used. Reserve extra sauce for guest use.

- Chicken Française
- 2 eggs, beaten
 - 2 lemons, juiced
 - 2 cups all-purpose flour
 - 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
 - 1/4 teaspoon paprika
 - 12 skinless, boneless chicken breasts
 - 4 tablespoons butter
 - 2 cans chicken broth
 - 6 slices lemon, for garnish

1. In a shallow dish or bowl, mix together the egg and juice of one lemon. In another shallow dish or bowl, mix together the flour, garlic powder and paprika. Dip chicken breasts in egg mixture, then flour mixture.
 2. Heat butter or margarine in a large skillet over medium heat. Add chicken breasts (cook one package at a time) and cook until golden on each side.
 3. In a medium bowl, mix together broth and juice of 1 lemon, and pour mixture over chicken in skillet. Reduce heat to medium low and let simmer for about 8 minutes.
- *Cook the frozen vegetables and rice as stated on the packages and place in separate serving pans to give guests side dish options. Season with salt and pepper.
- To serve food: Light the stemos and let heat, covered for at least one hour or until hot.

Party Hosts Must Put Safety First

(MS) — Since the advent of host laws, which make party hosts responsible to varying degrees for their guests' behavior once they leave a party, many party hosts have taken a greater interest in ensuring their guests have a safe time as well as a good time. Far too common are stories where party guests have a little too much fun and then leave the party impaired, only to hurt themselves and others as a result.

But host laws don't have to put an end to hosting parties, just an end to hosting parties in an irresponsible way that allows guests to get out of hand. The following tips should help keep guests safe from hurting themselves or others and keep hosts safe from potential litigation or even incarceration.

- Don't allow uninvited guests. When sending out invitations, let it be known that only those invited are allowed to attend. Parties have a tendency to get out of hand when uninvited guests show up. Hosts also will have a difficult time keeping an eye on their guests the larger the guest list, so keep gatherings relatively low key to avoid losing control of your guests.

- Discourage guests bringing their own alcohol. Hosts can control how much alcohol their guests drink if they discourage guests from bringing their own. However, if guests bring their own drinks, it's nearly impossible to know how much they've been drinking, leaving hosts susceptible to litigation and guests vulnerable to accidents should things get out of hand.

- Make transportation arrangements ahead of time. All drunk driving accidents are preventable, and hosts should have contingency transportation plans in place for guests who might have a little too much to drink. Oftentimes, an impaired guest won't want to wait for a host to call a cab, so setting down the rules for guests once they arrive (such as noting who is the night's designated driver) is a good way to let them know that you have things under control. If more than one person is hosting the party, at least one of them should be a designated driver. Should anything bad happen, the hosts are likely to catch the blame anyway, and being impaired yourself is not an adequate defense.

Party hosts should keep a watchful eye on their guests to ensure no one drinks too much.

- Ask guests to carpool. If your guest list is large, ask guests to carpool. This will ensure that there's enough parking and also will decrease the likelihood that guests will drive home drunk. The driver of the carpool should agree to avoid alcohol for the night.

- Keep an eye on the kids. If there will be kids at the party, especially teenagers, there will likely be kids trying to sneak drinks. While some guests might find it acceptable to let kids have a drink or two, hosts should know that they are wholly responsible for all kids, not just their own, who attend the party. Be sure to have other things, such as games or movies, available to kids at the party to keep them from drinking alcohol.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS

This is to inform you that there is a possibility you may be contacted by someone trying to scam you. The scammers use plays such as requesting you to send money prior to making a purchase, or offering to pay you a "processing fee" for depositing checks and sending a percentage back to them. These checks are FAKE and YOU will be held liable for repaying the funds to the bank.

It is usually a good idea to avoid transactions overseas or from out of state. To protect your self, shop locally.

Typically the scammers will contact you via email or via a phone relay system for the hearing impaired so you don't know where they are calling from or what they sound like.

Recently arrests were made in the Netherlands, Nigeria & Canada with fake checks worth more than $2.1 billion dollars. The average victim of this scam loses $3000 to $4000.

Please Be Cautious.

For information on how to report a scam, go to:
